EXPOSITION TO OPEN THIS MORN

PRESIDENT WILSON WILL SEND VIVIDLY SPARK BY WIRELESS AT NOON

MONSTER PARADE PLAN

Will be Unique in That There Will Be Few Spectators as Every Body is Expected to be in Line

By Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Feb. 19.—Instead of the long parade and that begins in other days of the year, dawn tomorrow in San Francisco will be a parade of soldiers of artillery from the Golden Gate and from the warships at anchor in the bay. Five minutes later, twenty army corps will roll and swag through the streets, striding "to the beat of a drum" and in the evening the opening of the Panama-Pacific international exposition.

President Wilson will send by wireless the vividly spark that is to energize the exposition, but since he cannot be here in person, it was arranged that the people themselves should enter upon their ownership in their own way.

There is to be a parade, but it is to be a parade like no other—a parade as nearly as possible without spectators. If all the city were to march and upon were left to watch then the directors would pronounce it perfect.

By tens of thousands, in societies and fraternities, in civil neighborhood and business organizations, the people have enrolled. As they approach the entrance to the exposition, the directors, the state exposition commission, the national exposition commission, the women's bureau, representatives of the army and navy, directors of divisions, chiefs of departments, head of bureaus, and others.

These will march down the Avenue of Palms, escorted by exposition guards, United States marines and the exposition band, to the temporary grandstand erected in front of the Tower of Jewels. As they take their places, Gov. Johnson of California, Mayor Rolph of San Francisco and other officials of the state and city will enter the grounds at the head of the citizens' procession. The citizens will assemble in the concourse, while the governor, the mayor and their parties will march through a lane of soldiers and marines to the grandstand, where the president and directors of the exposition will receive them.

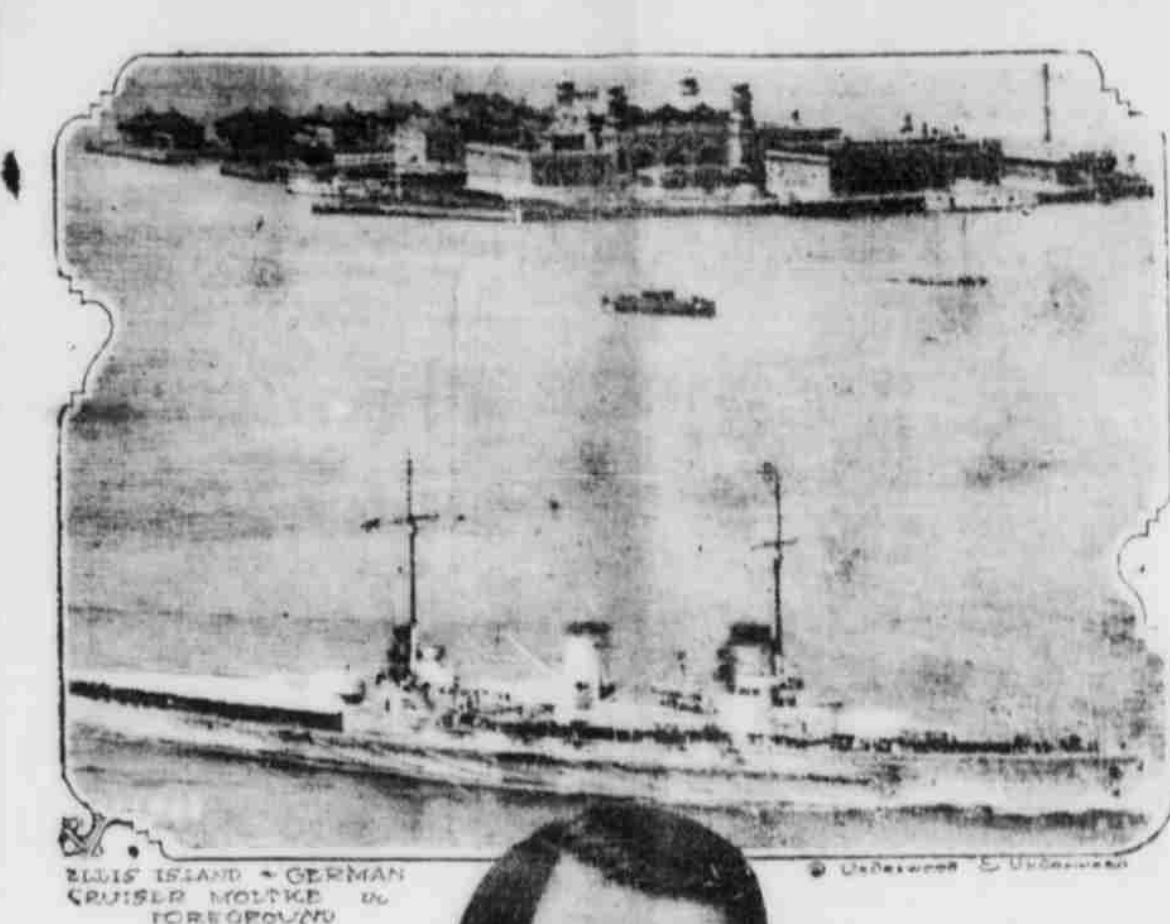

Five minutes later, the dedicatory ceremonies, as simple and brief as they can be made, will begin at 10 a. m. In dedications and a benediction will be pronounced by clergymen representing the Roman Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths. Address will be delivered by President Moore, Secretary Laws of the department of the interior, representing President Wilson, Gov. Johnson, Mayor Rolph and others. William H. Crocker, vice-president and chairman of the building and grounds committee, will formally announce to President Moore that the exposition is completed, at the same time presenting to him a gold scroll commemorating the occasion.

After the exercises have been concluded, President Moore will call President Wilson in Washington on a long distance telephone line previously set and waiting, at noon Pacific Coast time to notify him that the exposition awaits his touch to be opened. The president will touch a button, a wireless spark will flash through the air across the continent, and on its receipt the national colors will be raised, salutes will be fired, the Fountain of Energy will leap upward, all the statues in the city and harbor will bloom, and the main door of the Palace of Machinery will swing open, disclosing the exhibits to vision.

As all this activity springs into life, President Wilson will tell President Wilson that the kinetic spark he has been transformed into multifarious color and that the exposition is open. President Wilson in return will send his spoken greetings. A chorus of 200 voices, accompanied by the exposition band, will break into song, and an orchestra, coming the tower of Jewels, will follow, notes of peace.

At night there will be illuminations from batteries of searchlights, thrown through color screens upon the seven pendants of the Tower of Jewels, while from the heads of the colossal figures surrounding the Court of the University will blaze electric stars. The entire lighting system of the exposition is direct. Nowhere is there the winding glare of an arc lamp. All the glow will be reflected from the wide spaces of the United States and diffused softly through translucent screens.

No Danger of Overcrowding U. S., Says F. C. Howe

ELITE ISLAND - GERMAN CRUISER MOULDER ON TORREFOUN

NEW YORK, Feb. 19. (Special.)—Frederick C. Howe, commissioner of immigration, does not fear an overcrowding of America. Neither does he fear the illiterate immigrant. "Immigration is an important question to the people of this country, but it is not as important as land monopoly, for it is land monopoly that causes the crowding into the cities and the extension of the people from the land," says Howe. "All the land in America is owned, but only a small part of it is cultivated and a much larger part of it is in a low state of use. There are only about thirty people to the square mile in America, while in Europe there are ten times that many, in some countries fifteen times as many. All Germans could be put in Texas and Germany be a prosperous country. The immigrants who come here are many of them peasants. They would go to the land if they could do so. But the land is held by speculators in colonial tracts throughout the west, and people cannot get to it.

Howe says that his motto is that "the earth belongs to all the people." An incident early in his administration illustrates the commissioner's attitude. He found on taking office a large number of immigrants detained for various reasons on the upper floors of the government buildings at Ellis Island. Many of them had been there for months. Howe stretched an immediate green lawn which was carefully protected from use. It took him only a few hours to get the captives out onto the lawn where, spots of them stretched themselves at length fully basking the earth and luxuriating in the touch of green grass again.

"The earth means opportunity," says Howe. "The American trader in which we boast are not the product of race so much as the product of free contract with natural opportunities through a number of generations. That contract is now impossible for the average man. The way to restore it is to adopt a taxation policy which will encourage activity and discourage the idle holding of land.

ONLY THREE VESSELS TORPEDOED TO DATE

Great Britain Has Not Definitely Announced What Retaliatory Measures Will Be Adopted And Sailings are Being Resumed

LITTLE CHANGE IN SITUATION ON LAND

ENGLAND ANNOUNCES INTENTION OF TURNING CARGO OF WILHELMINA OVER TO PRIZE COURT—ALSO THAT NEUTRAL NATIONS WILL BE EXPECTED TO PLAY HANDS OFF UNTIL THE GERMANS ABANDON PRESENT METHODS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
LONDON, February 19.—Great Britain has not definitely announced what will be the promised retaliatory measures against the German submarine blockade which has now been in force two days and has resulted in the torpedoing of three vessels, the French steamer Dinorah off Dieppe, the Norwegian tank steamer Belridge near Folkestone and the steamer Nordkyn in the Baltic. The Nordkyn sank but the others made port.

Some Danish vessels were unable to sail owing to the refusal of their crews to move them. This was overcome later, and most Dutch lines have resumed their schedule under a government's insurance scheme.

Fighting in the west has consisted largely of attacks by the Germans in efforts to recover trenches lost recently. The Germans claim their attacks were successful but the Allies' reports say all the ground they gained has been recovered. The German army which drove the Russians out of East Prussia has occupied the Russian town of Tauragon but elsewhere the Germans were apparently halted by the arrival of Russian reinforcements. In the Carpathians neither side is able to make much progress, although the Russians announce they have repulsed numerous attacks.

Military men think the Austro-Germans did not leave enough men when reinforcements were sent to drive the Russians out of Bukovina. If defeated in the mountains it is predicted they will find themselves in a difficult position. The Russians apparently made an orderly retreat from Bukovina. A Vienna report from Rome says reinforcements have reached the Russians and a big battle is expected between Nadworna and Kolomea.

Besides the two German airships wrecked off the Danish coast it is reported that another has been seen in distress near Christian sand.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT OUTLINES POLICY

LONDON, February 19.—The British government today announced that it has decided that the cargo of the American steamer Wilhelmmina will be held for the decision of a prize court, through Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary. This seems to make clear the purpose of Great Britain to declare all foodstuffs for Germany contraband and also may foreshadow other reprisals.

In the note, after reviewing the German methods of warfare, and denouncing them as absolute violations of all international usages, says: "If therefore, his Majesty's Government should hereafter feel constrained to declare foodstuffs absolute contraband and take measures for interfering with German trade by way of reprisals, they confidently expect that such action will not be challenged on the part of neutral states, by appeals to laws and usages of war whose validity rests on their forming an integral part of the system of the international doctrine as a whole, which their enemy frankly boasts of his intention to disregard so long as such neutral states cannot compel the German government to abandon methods of warfare which are not in recent history regarded as sanctioned either by law or humanity."

The British foreign office issued a reply today to representations of the United States Government concerning the use of the American flag by British vessels. The note says that the Lusitania on a recent voyage from New York to Liverpool, raised the American flag "to save the lives of non-combatants, crew and passenger," and adds that, "in spite of the fact that American passengers asked that the American flag be hoisted, the British Government did not give advice to the company how to meet the request, and it is understood that the Lusitania left Liverpool under the British flag."

After discussing the Lusitania incident the memorandum says: "The British Government has no intention of advising the merchant shipping to use foreign flags as a general practice or to resort to other otherwise than for escaping capture, or destruction."

In conclusion it says: "The obligation of a belligerent warship to ascertain definitely for itself the nationality and character of a merchant vessel before capturing, sinking or destroying it is universally recognized, and it that obligation is fulfilled, the hoisting of a neutral flag cannot possibly endanger neutral shipping."

WILSON AND CABINET DISCUSS SITUATION

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 19.—President Wilson and his cabinet discussed at length today the dangers to American vessels and commerce growing out of the reiterated determination of the German government to wage a warfare of mines and submarines on enemy vessels, and disclaiming responsibility for what might happen to neutral vessels venturing into the proscribed area.

A canvas of cabinet officers disclosed that the administration regarded the recent development as of greatest importance. All declined to predict the course of this government.

Officially, this government has not received yet from Ambassador Gerard the text of the German reply to the American note, therefore no decision is announced of the United States policy. Some contend that inasmuch as the United States has informed Germany that the latter will be held to "strict accountability" for any attacks on American vessels and lives, in this the American government will be best conserved by standing unalterably on that warning and awaiting developments.
